LET'S TALK ABOUT CORRUPTION... BUT NOT THAT MUCH...

BY: WILL BROYLES POSTED BY: RSADMIN

“... the Broadmoor Neighborhood Association chief, Rob Broussard, recently received a $70,000 grant from the Caddo Commission for a tutoring program he organized. That fact is important because Broussard inserted himself heavily in the forum by offering the crowd his opinion on a lot of the issues as well as his faith and trust in the public “servants” sitting on the dais. His inability to understand his conflict of interest was only overshadowed by his inability to produce a single substantive answer about what exactly any public official is doing about the current hotbeds of local political conversations that this site has produced. Sadly, not one public servant even acknowledged the Caddo School Board scandal uncovered by anonymous whistleblower Bill Unsharpened in spite of repeated questions. Worse, not a single specific answer was provided by any pertaining to the CPERS scandal. All of these “servants” very carefully sidestepped these issues. BNA organizer, Rob Broussard, let them get away with not answering.

The BNA meetings at most have about 150 people, and this was probably as close to that number as they have ever gotten. The powerful and obviously startled Caddo Sheriff, Steve Prator, came with a rehearsed political speech and about 10 armed deputies in tow for a meeting to discuss corruption. Most everyone in the room agreed that this gave the appearance of a George D'Artois era intimidation tactic for anyone who dared to challenge him. Nevertheless, our brave sheriff made sure he could comfortably suppress any insurrection by the largely older crowd of peaceful Broadmoor homeowners who quizzed him on a range of topics including having their Facebook profiles hacked and being the victims of identity theft (notably off topic).

In reality, there was one challenger that was the clear and present danger to the sheriff's popular image. This writer continued to press the sheriff on the subject of his ineffectiveness in making sure that Caddo Commissioners were investigated and prosecuted. That subject has been clearly documented on this site. This writer has pointed out the obvious point that our sheriff is compromised or corrupted and actively protecting the Caddo Commissioners and other local public officials from prosecution by simply never investigating them . . .

The culture of corruption is strongly entrenched here. Opponents of corruption have now dragged these officials into the light though, and the community conversation is far from over. In spite of the growing outcry by taxpayers who pay these public officials' salaries, we are hit over and over again by just how big of an army these “brave” leaders are protected by... literally with Prator's display of force and figuratively by having a former federal judge take the orders of a troubled neighborhood association leader to suppress real questioning. The truth is, this was a dog and pony show from the jump.
